softwareQ: How can I disable this sort of authentication? This site has a weird authentication where I am required to fill in a captcha whenever I enter a new post or edit a post, but don't fill in the captcha when I answer a question, yet I am still considered logged in. I tried logging out by clicking the "Log out" button, but this didn't seem to do anything at all. If it matters, I'm using Firefox (version 40.0). A: That is not unusual for sites using it. If you want to be logged out then try the following: go to your profile page (click on your avatar to see the link). go to the Edit Profile & Settings page go to Personal info/Privacy & Security uncheck "Remember me" (screenshot).

Unicorn Rescue of the Invisible Unicorns When I was a kid the first time my mother dressed me in a polka-dot outfit she bought me an ice cream cone. What I didn't realize then was how much this would mark a tendency in my life towards modest, careful attention to the feelings of others. It is not my intent here to entertain some cute anecdote about my appreciation of ice cream or the caring adult I have grown to be. (I'm not particularly good at that sort of thing, if you can believe it.) I would like to speak of the time I entered a church nursery in June of 1981 and saw that a baby had been left in a bucket of ice. I now live in the New York City metropolitan area, but it took the grace of my boyfriend for me to make my way from the Brooklyn Bridge into the city. By the time I was thirteen I was already used to strange, pointless harm: it was my job to look after the dog, keep the electricity on, check the furnace, and throw out seven-eighths of the garbage. Our apartment was a low-rent complex with a storefront adjacent, and the scent of rotting fruit
