Autodesk adds: Rapid prototyping with CNC milling: Create final or draft parts of your design directly on top of the original model, just like a CNC mill. Export the model as DXF, PLT, DWG, PDF, or DWF, and share it with others. Clone tool and break tool: Make a clone of the first selected object (a part or sheet) or the entire drawing. If you would like to select only a portion of the sheet or a part, start by drawing a box or other selection around the component or the object. (video: 0:55 min.) The modeling tool: Use the previously announced modeling tool to shape a line, spline, or arc. The tool can be used to smooth edges that appear on curves or to extrude or taper a selected edge, face, or area. (video: 0:45 min.) Enhanced filter options: Filter objects to see only the ones that match a selection or filter for specific objects in your drawing, such as holes. The new filter options help you select what you need faster and save time with the Command Prompt. (video: 1:01 min.) Performance tool: Find the best way to complete your work. Use the Performance tool to analyze how your drawings can be improved, including reducing the number of objects in your drawing. The Performance tool uses a combination of internal and external analysis algorithms to help you find ways to improve the way you work. (video: 1:15 min.) Time-saving shortcuts: Use the shortcut keys to complete common actions faster. For example, press Ctrl+S to scale your drawing. (video: 0:38 min.) Auxiliary functions: We've added three new command buttons to the ribbon. The Edit Path command button allows you to: Create and edit a path. (video: 0:54 min.) Select, remove, and combine paths. Change the direction of a path. The Object category includes two new command buttons. The Command button lets you: Create and edit objects. Create a connector between two objects. Draw objects from the selected object or on the drawing canvas. Draw an outline around the selected object. Create and edit text styles. The Label category includes two new command buttons. The Drawing category includes two new command
