How to calculate the probability of getting a full house in three dice games? Let's say there are three fair 6-sided dice. I want to know the probability of getting a full house when rolling all three dice. In an online database I found an answer of  $(1/20)^3 = 0.0128$  -- I tried to manipulate that answer to get the same result as the database but didn't manage. I also tried to work it out manually with three individual calculations of the probability of getting, for example, a 4-1-1 in a row, but I got no close to this video I teach you the following sound lessons: 1. Carefully edit out any air hiss or crackles. 2. Don't adjust a mix until you hear the ambience. 3. Correct the balance of a track when making edits. 4. Use the right pan and level tool. 5. Use the right EQ or compressor for every sound. 6. Apply the right amount of distortion or compression to your sound. 7. Use a pop filter and compressor to make your vocals stand out. 8. Use the correct level and gain settings when making edits. 9. Don't forget to clean up your work. 10. Start recording the next project right away. 11. Work in two or three passes to achieve your final sound. 12. Know where your level meter, clip gain, and limiter are located. 13. Always have your soundman test out any sound you're making. 14. Don't let a small glitch in a clip be the end of an hour of work. 15. Keep your speakers on when making sounds in a project. 16. Always add your effects to the beginning of a track to preserve the original sound of the track. These are
