Mouse Control in Windows 8 has gone a long way, and it also works flawlessly in Windows 8.1 as well. Here, our tutorial will show how to adjust the mouse and keyboard settings in Windows 8.1 or Windows 8. If you are not familiar with mouse settings, here is a quick tutorial to learn how to configure mouse settings. We'll be taking a look at several methods for adjusting your mouse speed in Windows 8.1 or Windows 8. The easiest and most important method is using the mouse settings. However, sometimes you need to make changes to your mouse settings if it is a multi-button mouse, or perhaps you want your mouse to behave differently.

How To Adjust Mouse Settings in Windows 8

First, open the control panel. There are three ways to do this in Windows 8.1. The first is by using the touch keyboard at the lower right of the screen (in the case of a touchscreen), the second is to click the Windows key, then click Control Panel, then the mouse icon, and the last one is using the search box in the taskbar and typing in "Control Panel." From the control panel, click on mouse. You will then be able to set the values for mouse speed, click sensitivity, anti-aliasing and double-click speed. Some control panels may not include the option of adjusting mouse speed.

Windows 8: Adjusting Mouse Speed

Configure mouse

speed in Windows 8 is a simple process, and the mouse settings you've chosen are stored in the registry. You will want to use the power menu at the bottom of the screen for this process. This will keep you from changing your mouse settings accidentally. Open the registry editor with a key combination, then navigate to the following key:

Windows\Control Panel\Mouse Add the following value to the key Click = 1 Click the Apply button at the bottom of the control panel. Then exit the registry. These are the basic mouse settings in Windows 8. Method 2: Adjust Mouse Settings in Windows 8 In Windows 8 and 8.1, you can find the mouse settings by simply clicking the mouse icon in the taskbar. Click it again to get rid of the settings. Change mouse settings in Windows 8 is a
